Parent Programs in Reading

Anthony D. Fredericks 1985

Intended for reading teachers, supervisors, and administrators, this guide can be used to develop a parental involvement program. The book first presents a preprogram survey, an informal assessment of attitudes and skills that are important in parent programs. Chapter 1 contains the parent reading engagement profile, which includes guidelines and examples for needs assessment, program planning, program implementation, and evaluation. Chapter 2 covers the publicizing and promotion of parent programs. Chapter 3 presents an overview of a variety of parent programs and projects that have been successfully implemented in different educational settings. An appendix lists materials and activities that have been used in some of these programs.
