Exploring Coherence in English Language Arts

Instructional Systems in the Common Core Era
Morgan Polikoff 2020 Coherence among components of an instructional system is key to changing teachers' instructional practices in standards-based reforms. Coherence involves working across traditional silos-or system components (e.g., curriculum, professional learning, assessment)-to integrate components to avoid fragmentation of experiences for educators and students. The authors set out to understand how districts and schools are activating various policy levers (i.e., instructional components) to drive instructional coherence and student learning in English language arts (ELA) in the Common Core era. The authors investigate the coherence of teachers' instructional systems using survey data from state-representative samples of teachers and smaller samples of district leaders across three states: Louisiana, Massachusetts, and Rhode Island. Specifically, in spring 2019, the authors asked state-representative samples of teachers in these states about the extent to which their curricula, assessments, and other components of their instructional systems cohered with one another and aligned with state standards. The authors examine the alignment of curriculum to standards, as well as the extent to which four components of instructional systems hypothesized as key to supporting instructional coherence are aligned to standards or the curriculum: curriculum-related resources (e.g., lesson plans, pacing guides), professional development, teacher evaluation, and student assessments. Using these findings, the authors build a measure of the overall extent of coherence in teachers' ELA instructional systems.

Teacher Perception of Pacing Guide Use in the Secondary Classroom Donna Michele Smith Turner 2015 Historically, teachers have exercised considerable autonomy in the day-to-day learning that occurs in their classrooms. Now, it is growing increasingly rare for a teacher to experience this type of professional freedom. In response to high-stakes testing, national and state academic content standards, and most recently the common core standards, pacing guides are one of the more recent devices schools are using to implement and monitor curriculum. The purpose of this research project is to investigate teacher opinion toward these pacing guides. An online survey called the Pacing Guide Survey was delivered to secondary regular and special education teachers in core subject areas of mathematics, science, social studies, and language arts. The teachers were asked about whether or not they use pacing guides, their attitude and comfort level in using pacing guides, as well as: Information concerning the population of their high school, such as demographics, enrollment, and single or multiple high schools; Building level factors, such as professional development initiatives, methods of curriculum monitoring, and pacing guide development and revisions processes; teacher factors, such as years teaching, years using pacing guides, confidence in content area, and educational background. Administrators were also interviewed to form a complete picture of pacing guide development and implementation in the secondary education environment. Quantitative data were analyzed using bivariate Spearman's rank order correlation and qualitative data were analyzed using a combination of thematic data analysis and quasi-statistical methods. Recommendations based on the data collected are: Teachers should be provided with the flexibility to address student needs in the classroom. Teacher input into pacing guide development, implementation, and revision process is necessary to ensure that student needs are addressed. Team autonomy is key and teacher teams need to be provided with the necessary support structure to provide meaningful learning experiences for their students.

ELLs: Thinking Skills and CCSS, Focus on the Six Shifts Estee Lopez 2013-01-01 The Common Core State Standards (CCSS) for English Language Arts (ELA) require students to engage higher level thinking skills and language use to activate their understanding of content/text. They are designed to be academically rigorous for all students, and are especially so for students who are English language learners (ELL). In ELLs: Thinking Skills and CCSS, Dr. Estee Lopez provides evidence-based instructional approaches as well as best practices for helping ELLs meet the CCSS for ELA. The six-page (tri-fold) guide is structured around the six shifts embodied in the CCSS for English Language Arts: 1. Increasing reading of informational text/balancing informational and literary texts 2. Knowledge in the disciplines 3. Staircase of complexity 4. Text-based answers 5. Writing from sources 6. Academic language The guide explains each shift, its implications for ELLs, and what is required of teachers. For each shift, the author lists best practices, examples of scaffolding for ELLs, and things that teachers and administrators must do create conditions that ensure that ELLs succeed.
