Reading-writing Connections Mary F. Heller 1991 "Reading-Writing Connections: From Theory to Practice, Second Edition, is an extraordinary language arts methods text that enables elementary and middle school teachers to create classroom environments where all students can become lifelong readers and writers. Focusing on developmentally appropriate methods and materials, this remarkably readable book empowers a new generation of teachers to integrate reading, writing, listening, and speaking in K-8 classrooms. Heller's highly accessible writing style makes Reading-Writing Connections suitable as the primary text for undergraduate and graduate courses in language arts, reading, writing, and literacy."--BOOK JACKET.Title Summary field provided by Blackwell North America, Inc. A Resource Guide for Elementary School Teaching Richard Dean Kellough 1994 A Resource Guide for Elementary School Teaching is a practical, comprehensive, and concise methods book designed to engage readers in

"hands-on" and "minds-on" learning about effective teaching. A four-part organization covers an orientation to elementary school teaching and learning; planning for instruction; strategies, aids, media, and resources for effective instruction; assessment and professional development. A new chapter on elementary school children discusses their development and their diversity -- and specific strategies for working with them.

Patterns for a Purpose Barbara Fine Clouse 1999 This rhetorically organized reader presents the patterns of development in the most realistic way--as a means of fulfilling the writer's purpose, not as ends in themselves, and with argumentation-persuasion treated as a purpose for writing as well as a pattern.

"Effective literacy is the immediate objective of this text. Literary appreciation comes later, and literacy is its first prerequisite. Chapters are arranged to lead from relatively simple literacy in Chapter One to fairly complex literary appreciation in Chapter Four. Chapter divisions are expedient, by no means logically exclusive.

Certainly, a skilled reader may derive information, instruction, idea, and attitude all at one reading. We recognize such integrated reception as a valid goal for freshman effort and seek to achieve it through easy stages."--Preface, p. vi

There's a Writer in Our House! Strategies for Supporting and Encouraging Young Writers and Readers at Home Ann P.

Kaganoff 2024-04-11 There's a Writer in Our House! is an invitation to parents of children in first grade through fifth grade interested in actively participating in their children's early literacy learning from the very first steps. Founded upon well-researched literacy instructional methods that have been informed by the author's clinical perspective as well as her years of experience with many kinds of learners, this book provides a valuable understanding of how both writing and reading contribute to child development in multiple areas. Chapters provide background concepts regarding grammar and specific critical thinking skills in both writing and reading as well as customizable, child-centered activities used to practice and build writing and reading comprehension skills. You will learn how to advance and encourage your child's learning and communication skills by highlighting important literacy areas such as vocabulary development, background knowledge, and critical thinking. You will also learn to recognize and track the significant developmental achievements of your child as you proceed from the early to the more complex At-Home activities, as well as receive strategies for how to respond and give feedback in specific situations, such as when a child writes something that makes sense to the child but not to the parent, how to offer feedback that identifies and labels a child's strengths, and how to collaborate effectively with a child who is just developing new interests or a new willingness to try something that previously seemed "hard." Practical, accessible, and most importantly, fun, this book is a must-read for all parents, regardless of background, seeking to support their children's ongoing literacy development confidently and effectively.
