Proceedings of the Undergraduate in Computer Sciences Colloquium 2025 Mohammad Hafiz bin Ismail 2025-02-05 The Undergraduates in Computer Sciences Colloquium serves as a platform for final-year Bachelor of Computer Science students to exhibit their projects and research in three key fields: Information Technology (IT), Netcentric Computing, and Data Communication & Networking. This proceeding book compiles their work, reflecting their technical proficiency, problem-solving capabilities, and innovative thinking. This colloquium not only provides an avenue for students to share their work but also fosters collaboration, critical thinking, and innovation within the computing community. It is our hope that this compilation serves as an inspiration for future students and researchers, encouraging continuous learning and advancement in the field of computer science.

Software Requirements Karl E. Wiegers 2013-08-15 Now in its third edition, this classic guide to software requirements engineering has been fully updated with new topics, examples, and guidance. Two leaders in the requirements community have teamed up to deliver a contemporary set of practices covering the full range of requirements development and management activities on software projects. Describes practical, effective, field-tested techniques for managing the requirements engineering process from end to end. Provides examples demonstrating how requirements "good practices" can lead to fewer change requests, higher customer satisfaction, and lower development costs. Fully updated with contemporary examples and many new practices and techniques. Describes how to apply effective requirements practices to agile projects and numerous other special project situations. Targeted to business analysts, developers, project managers, and other software project stakeholders who have a general understanding of the software development process. Shares the insights gleaned from the authors' extensive experience delivering hundreds of software-requirements training courses, presentations, and webinars. New chapters are included on specifying data requirements, writing high-quality functional requirements, and requirements reuse. Considerable depth has been added on business requirements, elicitation techniques, and nonfunctional requirements. In addition, new chapters recommend effective requirements practices for various special project situations, including enhancement and replacement, packaged solutions, outsourced, business process automation, analytics and reporting, and embedded and other real-time systems projects.

Study of Computer Procedures for Menu Planning and Recipe Service for DoD Elements

Roger T. Baust 1967 A survey of present status of computerized menu planning accomplishments and research showed that no computerized menu planning system now exists in any military service, and there are no present plans to develop one. The U.S. Navy and Marine Corps have no accomplishments in computerization of food service which would have a bearing on the development of a system. Both U.S. Army and Air Force accomplishments are in the area of Food Plan recapitulation and nutrient content and costing verification. These are fully compatible with the system model proposed. The Food Service Division, Walter Reed General Hospital, is conducting research on a comprehensive food service system of which menu planning is a minor and final part. Although specific for hospital use, parts of the system may be useful for a general troop feeding system. The Veterans administration computerized procedure, which develops a 28-day Food Plan from which dietitians manually construct menus, may provide guidance for a DoD system. Accomplishments and research in university hospitals are not directly applicable to military feeding. They are directed toward a demand-based stochastic system, whereas the military services use a plan-based deterministic system. The Food Plan precedes and is more important than the menu. (Author).
